

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

Device for supplying single articles provided with a head and stick, such as lollipops, to be packed in bags, includes a supply station for the articles in a disorderly flow, a discharge station for discharging the articles in an orderly flow for further processing or treatment in the packaging process, a distribution disc connecting to the supply station and the discharge station and having a series of holes at its circumference for accommodation of the heads of the articles, elements for urging the heads in the holes, elements for keeping down the sticks during the movement of the distribution disc from the supply station to the discharge station, the holes being vertically continuous and the elements for keeping down being absent at the location of the discharge station, which is placed vertically underneath the distribution disc.